ABSTRACT

The listing consists of a selection of doctoral dissertations concerning career education available through Xerox University Microfilm during 1970-May, 1975 and all dissertations related to career preparation listed in the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC) from November, 1966 until May, 1975. The dissertations, all in roll microfilm form, are available for use through the New Jersey Occupational Resource Center in Edison, New Jersey. In the selection of materials priorities were given to dissertations that focused on the following topics: key words such as career, job, occupation, vocation, and work; major theories of career development and occupational choice; and self-awareness, career awareness, and attitudes (since these relate to the six goals of career education in New Jersey). Inclusion of career-related studies of the educational professions was greatly limited. A table lists ERIC ED numbers and the Xerox University Microfilms document equivalents. The collection of dissertations is presented in two sections: (1) keyword index, listing keyword, title of dissertation, author, and publication number of Xerox University Microfilms; and (2) author index, listing author, title of dissertation, degree information, institution, pages, reference to abstract in Dissertation Abstracts International, and publication number of Xerox University Microfilms. (Author/EC)

* Documents acquired by ERIC include many informal unpublished *
* materials not available from other sources. ERIC makes every effort * * to obtain the best copy available. Nevertheless, items of marginal *
* reproducibility are often encountered and this affects the quality * * of the microfiche and hardcopy reproductions ERIC makes available *
* via the ERIC Document Reproduction Service (EDRS). EDRS is not * * responsible for the quality of the original document. Reproductions * * supplied by EDRS are the best that can be made from the original. *

INTRODUCTION

This Listing

The most recent additions to the collection of doctoral dissertations at the New Jersey Occupational Resource Center, Edison, constitute this listing. All are in roll microfilm form.

New Jerseyites are welcome to borrow any of these as well as a portable reader. All others are welcome to use these materials at the Center.

Included in this listing are:

1. A wide selection of doctoral dissertations concerning Career Education - the life-long preparation of all persons for maximizing their employment potential - available through Xerox University Microfilms during the period from 1970 through May, 1975.
2. All doctoral dissertations related to career preparation listed in the Educational Resources Information Center (the national system for educational information now being administered by the National Institute of Education) since the first indexes of that system were published in November of 1966, until May, 1975, to the extent that these documents are available only through Xerox University Microfilms. Although numbering only 121, they provide an important supplement to the ERIC system for those interested in career preparation programs.

This publication acts as a successor to this writer's earlier listing: Doctoral Dissertations concerning Career Education, 1960-1971 (New Jersey State Department of Education, May, 1972; 32p.)

The computer was an important tool in (1) sorting out dissertations related to Career Education in the ERIC system; and (2) providing the final printout which constitutes this publication. Special thanks go to the Xerox University Microfilms for its attention to detail providing us with the finished computerized product.

Using This Publication

The title key-word format for this listing permits maximum flexibility and amazing specificity in searching the documents by the key words in the titles. However, the user must assume responsibility for approaching his or her topic by a number of synonyms and related terms. The importance of the user's imagination in providing his or her own search language MUST be emphasized.

The pay-off is close when the user can identify the official document numbers by which the New Jersey Occupational Resource Center organizes its dissertation collection and responds to requests for these documents. These same document numbers are also useful for ordering paper copies or roll film copies from Xerox University Microfilms in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Emphases in Selecting This Collection

The choice of documents, other than those already chosen by the ERIC system, was necessarily subjective. More than 12,000 documents were considered for inclusion.

For examining dissertations incorporated into the Xerox University Microfilms system during 1971, 1972 and 1973, sixty-five key words were used that were recognized as important in major documents concerning Career Education. For examining dissertations incorporated into U.M. during 1974 and 1975, these word roots were chiefly used, because of the vastly increased incidence of career-related topics:

- *Career
- *Job
- *Occupation
- *Vocation
- *Work

Priority was given to dissertations which dealt with major theories of career development and occupational choice. Consequently, a studied effort was made to include dissertations with titles that mentioned the following major theorists:

- | | |
|-------------------|-----------------------|
| *Crites | *Roe |
| *Ginzberg | *Super |
| *Holland | *Thoresen and Mehrens |
| *Ivey and Morrill | *Thorndike and Hagen |
| *Osipow | *Tiedeman and O'Hara |
| *Parsons | |

Self-awareness, career awareness and attitudes were also given high priority in the selection process, because in New Jersey these are the six goals of Career Education:

- *Educational and Occupational Skills
- *Career-awareness
- *Self-awareness
- *Work Attitudes and Habits
- *Decision-Making Process
- *Socio-economic, Technological Understandings

Although decision-making has dominated the interest of guidance practitioners for decades, this area was not greatly emphasized because of recent attention given the extreme tentativeness of most senior high school students' career-related decisions.

Another guide used in the selection of dissertations was to greatly limit inclusion of career-related studies of the educational professions, which as a topic is considerably overworked and seems frequently unproductive of transportable insight on career development.

Limitations of This Collection

Four major areas were neglected in this collection because of a shortage of funds. A relatively complete collection of dissertations concerning Career Education--perhaps three times the size of this listing--is a project of national usefulness and is worthy of special funding.

One important area somewhat neglected here is a study of the conventional symptoms of career success:

- *Entry into the job market
- *Job satisfaction
- *Salary, wages
- *Employment, despite technological change
- *Employment, despite corporate merges
- *Employment in a period of rapid inflation
- *Promotion, advancement
- *Work success patterns

A second area requiring greater development involves programs and services which support career development efforts of schools:

- | | |
|------------------------|--------------------------------|
| *Apprentices | *Simulations |
| *Work-study | *Placement |
| *Cooperative education | *School community coordination |
| *Work experience | *Follow-up studies |
| *Career counseling | |

A third area requiring more attention in such a collection as this is the relevant characteristics of specific groups requiring career preparation:

- | | |
|---------------------|----------------|
| *Children | *Handicapped |
| *Youth | *Unemployed |
| *Adults | *Dropouts |
| *Mid-career changes | *Disadvantaged |
| *Women | |

Finally, the fourth limitation of this collection is the modest attention paid here to the traditional vocational education areas (such as agricultural education, health occupations education, etc.) and the fifteen occupational clusters now in use by the U.S. Office of Education to organize the thousands of occupations in this country.

Extending the Availability of ERIC

By adding to the availability of Key ERIC documents concerned with career preparation, this collection and listing performs an important service.

Since Xerox University Microfilms numbers are not always provided in ERIC abstracts, the following table will be of great assistance to those interested in career development and have identified desirable documents in the ERIC listings. The table displays the ERIC "ED" numbers related to Career Education and the Xerox University Microfilms document equivalents:

1. Keyword. All subject keywords are listed in alphabetical order. Each new keyword is displayed in boldface type at the extreme left of the column. Individual dissertation entries under each keyword are listed first by date (beginning with the most recent), then alphabetically by school, and finally alphabetically by author.

2. Title. The keyword appears in context, and is printed in boldface type to speed the user's determination of relevance of the entry. The end of a title is indicated by a dash. If there was no dissertation, but there was a musical composition or a performance, for example, this is noted. In those cases where the dissertation title was not available or if there was none, the entry is listed in the Author Index only, with the statement NO TITLE PROVIDED

3. Author. The full name is given when known, with the surname first. Religious, military, and other such designations are generally omitted.

4. Degree. If not known to be otherwise, Ph.D. is listed.

5. Date. Some sources used in compiling this index covered the academic rather than the calendar year. In these cases the latter year was used for the index and may not be the exact date the degree was granted.

6. School. The name of the school granting the degree is listed. In cases where the name of the school has been changed since the granting of the degree, or where the school has since merged with another school, only the most recent name is given. If the school is outside the United States, the country is also designated.
